A PROGRAM TO INCREASE SALES AND PROFITS DURING THESE DIFFICULT TIMES

These are tough times, and it looks like they'll remain tough through 2009. We hear from our clients how difficult these times are. They appreciate having Windward Group on their team as experienced leaders who have taken companies profitably through economic turmoil (for instance, the troubled times after September 11).

We can help maximize your growth and profitability during this economic downturn by assisting you to identify and prioritize activities which generate incremental profit. But today we are writing to tell you about an exciting cost effective program to help both maximize profits and gain share while you muscle through this crisis.

Defensive Tactics	maximize short term bottom line	Most companies are very good at deploying defensive tactics to preserve financial well being when faced with sudden downturns.
Offensive Strategies	capture market share	When cutting expenses, it's easy to lose visibility to the longer term. Better competitors emulate Warren Buffet & see opportunities to invest in strategic activities to capture share from weaker competitors. There definitely will be winners & losers in your marketplace's competitive set. Will you be the winner or will you lose share to a stronger competitor? The choice is yours.

THE BENEFITS OF BEING THE LOYALTY LEADER – MORE SALES AND PROFIT

Within a competitive set, the loyalty leader will grow 2.6 times the competitive average! In this case, loyalty isn't defined by Lifetime Value, although that is a very valid indicator of customer worth. Rather it is defined by a more qualitative measure called Net Promoter Score which allows customers to define themselves as brand Promoters or brand Detractors.

- Promoters, people who are most likely to recommend your brand to friends, actually shop more frequently, purchase more and concentrate their spending. Giving them more of what they like lengthens their time as your best customers and delivers new customers through referrals.
- Detractors, however, are least likely to recommend a brand to friends and they often have quite negative things to say about a brand. Yes, you can have a high Lifetime Value and still be a brand detractor! Fixing their complaints retains these customers and can turn them into promoters.
- The loyalty leader is the one brand within a competitive set with the highest Net Promoter Score, defined as the percentage of promoters less the percentage of detractors.

Where do you stand relative to your close competitors? Windward Group can help you find out. Windward Group's program gives you four critical pieces of information that you can turn into greater sales & profitability:

1. Your company's Net Promoter Score.
2. Qualitative comments of what your Promoters love about you. These comments can inform your strategic intent and help you capture share.
3. Qualitative comments of why your Detractors are alienated. This knowledge will help you prioritize your tactical actions during this difficult time. As the lowest hanging fruit, these ideas will propel short term profits when fixed.
4. The Net Promoter Score of your nearest competitors....and their Promoter and Detractor comments as well. Having this critical information can help you position your company to compete better.

These four critical pieces of insight come directly from your customers! Here are some particulars about the program:
